

Working at the Victorian Auditor-General's Office

The Auditor-General is an independent officer of the Victorian Parliament, appointed to examine the management of resources within the public sector on behalf of Parliament and Victorians

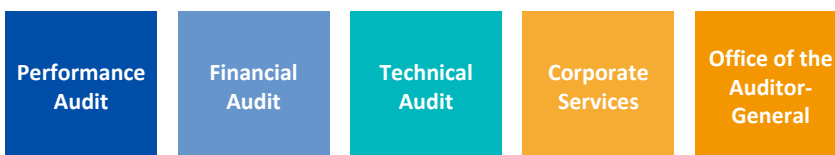

Our work

Our work provides great variety—we are more than 'just auditors'. We contribute to business improvements and strategic activities, attend forums and engage in deep complex thinking and project-based assurance, review and accountability work.

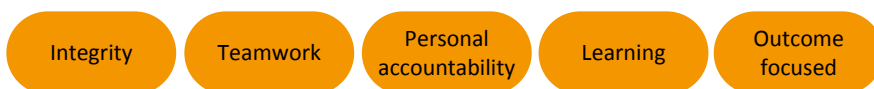

You'll have the opportunity to deliver effective work using our structured audit processes and methods and negotiate, influence and consult with senior executives from throughout the public sector while remaining independent from government.

Our team

Our well-qualified people come from a diverse range of professional and personal backgrounds, have a passion for integrity and accountability in the public sector and strong personal values, and we want to make a real difference.

Our values

Our office

We've just moved to a newly designed, modern, open-plan working environment with upgraded technology and systems.
